DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objection

Claims 10 and 13 are objected under 37 CFR 1.75(d).

There is insufficient antecedent basis for “the chip” in claim 10 line 7 and in claim 13 lines 1-2.

The examiner suggests changing “the chip” in claims 10 and 13 to --the substrate--.

Any further rejections of, or indications of the allowability of, any claims 10-20 are based on claims 10-20 as they are understood by the examiner.

Double Patenting

Warning

Applicant is advised that should claims 1, 10 and their respective dependencies be found allowable, claims 10-19 will be objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 as being a substantial duplicate of claims 1-9 and 20 thereof. When two claims in an application are duplicates or else are so close in content that they both cover the same thing, despite a slight difference in wording, it is proper after allowing one claim to object to the other as being a substantial duplicate of the allowed claim. See MPEP § 706.03(k).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-7, 9-16, and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Maeda et al. (U. S. Pub. No. 2003/0057988)

Regarding claims 1-7, 9-16, and 18-20 Maeda et al. teach on page 2, paragraph [0021], and in figure 1 a method for measuring current leakage of a contact (92) of a semiconductor device (5) formed in a substrate (4), the method comprising the steps of:

Exposing the contact (94) known to be defective thereby marking the contact before scanning with an electrically conductive tip probe (3) of a conductive atomic force microscope; applying a DC voltage (2) from a variable DC voltage source thereby being able to apply at least two voltages between the substrate (4) attached to a holder (paragraph [0029]) and the tip of the probe; and measuring currents (1) passing through the contacts to the substrate, in response to various applied variable DC voltages (2) using an ammeter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 8 and 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maeda et al. (U. S. Pub. No. 2003/0057988) in view of B. El-Kareh (Introduction to VLSI Silicon Devices, page 93).

Regarding claims 8 and 17, Maeda et al teach all of the limitations of the base claim but lacks plotting the values of current against the values of the applied voltage. However it is very well known in the art of which the examiner takes official notice to plot the values of current against voltage. In support of this assertion the examiner cites a textbook by B. El-Kareh (Introduction to VLSI Silicon Devices, page 93).
